Recognising Speech

Kayla has written the story below including both direct and indirect speech. Use the story to complete the speech bubbles showing the words spoken by each character.

In his rocking chair, gently swaying forwards and backwards, an old man sat with his grown son. The man's son had begrudgingly visited his father after a long day at the office.
Unexpectedly, a magpie perched on the garden gate. The father asked his son, "What is that?"
The son told him that it was just a magpie. The father went back to rocking his chair.
After a few minutes, the father asked his son again, "What is that?"
The son replied, "Dad, I have just told you. It's a magpie."
After a little while, the old father again asked his son what it was. This time, the son was really irritated with his father asking the same question. He replied to his dad with anger in his tone, "It's a magpie, it's a magpie, it's a magpie!"
Some time later, the father again asked his son, "What is that?"
This time, the son, who was annoyed by his dad's repetitive question, shouted, "Why do you keep asking me the same question again and again, even though I have told you so many times? IT IS A MAGPIE!"

Dad

Son

Dad

Son

Dad

Son

© Classroom Secrets Limited 2021

Recognising Speech

Kayla has written the story below including both direct and indirect speech. Use the story to complete the speech bubbles showing the words spoken by each character.

In his rocking chair, gently swaying forwards and backwards, an old man sat with his grown son. The man's son had begrudgingly visited his father after a long day at the office.
Unexpectedly, a magpie perched on the garden gate. The father asked his son, "What is that?"
The son told him that it was just a magpie. The father went back to rocking his chair.
After a few minutes, the father asked his son again, "What is that?"
The son replied, "Dad, I have just told you. It's a magpie."
After a little while, the old father again asked his son what it was. This time, the son was really irritated with his father asking the same question. He replied to his dad with anger in his tone, "It's a magpie, it's a magpie, it's a magpie!"
Some time later, the father again asked his son, "What is that?"
This time, the son, who was annoyed by his dad's repetitive question, shouted, "Why do you keep asking me the same question again and again, even though I have told you so many times? IT IS A MAGPIE!"

Dad

What is that?

It's just a magpie.

Son

Dad

What is that?

Dad, I have just told you. It's a magpie.

Son

Dad

What is that?

Why do you keep asking me the same question again and again, even though I have told you so many times? IT IS A MAGPIE!

Son

© Classroom Secrets Limited 2021