

Using Determiners

1. Tick the examples that use the correct article.

A. the event

B. a honourable man

C. an igloo

D. a wizard

VF

4. James and Toria look at the sentence below.

Yesterday, we ate _____ exquisite meal at _____ Indian restaurant called Anita's.

In order to complete the sentence correctly, I think the article 'a' should be used before exquisite and Indian.

James

Toria

I think the article 'an' should be used before exquisite and the article 'the' can be used before Indian.

Who is correct? Explain why.

R

2. Insert the most suitable determiner to the sentence below.

We had science this morning and we were learning about the cycle of _____ moon.

few

the

an

VF

5. Explain how the use of the underlined articles affect the meaning of the sentences below.

Ruby cut the watermelon into equal pieces.

Ruby cut a watermelon into equal pieces.

R

3. Underline any errors in the sentences below.

Its manager had to choose an uniform for his staff. He had the choice of picking some blue, black or red outfit. A decision was made and he opted for the red uniform.

VF

6. Using the words below, create two sentences with different articles before the nouns. The first sentence should use a known article and the second an unknown article.

photographer

wedding venue

A

Using Determiners

1. A, C and D
2. the
3. Its manager had to choose an uniform for his staff. He had the choice of picking some blue, black or red outfit. A decision was made and he opted for the red uniform.
4. Toria is correct because the exquisite meal is an unknown noun so the article 'an' must be used. She is correct in identifying that the article 'the' can be added before Indian as it is a known noun.
5. The first sentence uses a known article 'the' to show that Ruby cut a specific watermelon into many equal pieces. The second sentence uses the unknown article 'a' to show that Ruby cut any watermelon into many equal pieces.
6. Various answers, for example: The photographer took many photographs in different locations around a wedding venue; A photographer was requested by the wedding venue to come and take pictures of the surroundings for their website.