

Identifying Paragraphs

Separate the text below into three paragraphs. Write the next paragraph of the story to show a change in time.

A long way from the edge of town, there stood a decrepit house. The townspeople had heard many different stories but no one had been brave enough to go and investigate...until now! Zachary was just about to turn sixteen and had grown up hearing of these stories. They had always fascinated him and part of him wanted to believe they were true. They were tales of strange sightings and spooky sounds. His friends, on the other hand, didn't agree. They always told Zachary he was ridiculous for believing it was more than just an abandoned house. Everyone knows that ghosts don't really exist... right?

A long way from the edge of town, there stood a decrepit house. The townspeople had heard many different stories but no one had been brave enough to go and investigate...until now!

Zachary was just about to turn sixteen and had grown up hearing of these stories. They had always fascinated him and part of him wanted to believe they were true. They were tales of strange sightings and spooky sounds.

His friends, on the other hand, didn't agree. They always told Zachary he was ridiculous for believing it was more than just an abandoned house. Everyone knows that ghosts don't really exist... right?

Early one morning, Zachary awoke to a tiny voice in his ear. He suddenly knew what he needed to do. Without hesitation, he grabbed his backpack and filled it with the essentials. He snuck down the stairs so as not to disturb his parents and silently crept out of the house.